To Whom It May Concern:

The Education Undergraduate Society arranges and provides Professional Development workshops for education students at the University of Lethbridge. This letter is written at the request of Alisha Sims who attended the following seminars during the months of September and October of 2013:

“Teaching Boys” was presented by Dr. Carmen Mombourquette, who shared his experiences and contemplations that arose during his time as headmaster at an all-boys private school. This session is one that he also occasionally presents to practicing teachers, with the goal of orienting mentalities so that they are mindful of concepts that will help a teacher understand and react more effectively when dealing with boys in schools.

The processes of “Teacher Growth, Supervision and Evaluation” were elaborated upon by Keith Hadden, of the ATA. Pre-service teachers were informed of what a teacher professional growth plan entails, the procedures of supervision and evaluation, and how these will influence their position as an employed teacher.

“The Job Interview” was a session presented by Dr. Carmen Mombourquette, who has had experience in the process of hiring and the selection of teachers. He imparted suggestions and tips on students about how to make an impression during a job interview, and strategies that will help you impress potential employers.
